A Vision of Hope
CEO & Board Chair Report

This past year at Women’s Crisis Services has been a busy one with many changes. Throughout the year we have focused our efforts on building upon the successes of the past. We acknowledged our 40 year anniversary which was somewhat bittersweet. While we celebrate the strides we have made in helping women and children move beyond violence, we recognize that there still much work to be done.

The theme of this year’s annual report is 40 years of hope. This year more than ever it has been necessary to remain hopeful. Despite 8 years of domestic violence rates remaining steady, there was a reported increase this past year. Further, the number of women killed in Canada has increased from every 6 days to every 2.5 days. Even though these statistics are discouraging, there is much to be hopeful for. The dialogue and the awareness of this important issue is also increasing.

We finished up the second year of our three-year strategic plan. The three pillars of our plan are: inspiring action working to free our community from violence against women; effectively serving those who need us the most; and supporting our people who work and volunteer here. This plan has allowed us to be creative and innovative while ensuring our efforts are best directed where they are needed the most.

In May 2018, we were able to open up the previously closed shelter beds. Towards the end of 2018, we were able to fully pay off the bank loaned mortgage on Haven House, which removed a significant financial burden for the organization. The generous support of our community really made this possible. We continue to reduce a low interest loan kindly contributed through the Kitchener Waterloo Community Foundation which was provided to help refinance a portion of the Haven House mortgage.

Thanks to all of our staff and volunteers for their passion and dedication in helping women and children move beyond violence. Both the Board of Directors and staff have been incredibly supportive and patient throughout the year with the change in leadership. A special thank you to our trusty Program Supervisor with the Ministry of Children, Community and Social Services, Ilda Gizas. Your support and belief in Women’s Crisis Services is so greatly appreciated.

CONTINUING TO BUILD UPON THE SERVICES WE PROVIDE

Focusing on Infants and Toddlers

In our Child and Youth program, we have started a new initiative. During the past year, funding was allocated through the Resilience Project for an additional Child and Youth position with a focus on early childhood education (ECE) to help bridge the service gap for mothers in shelter with infants and toddlers. Laura Hutfloetz was hired in October 2018 and has an ECE background which brings this expertise to the Child and Youth team. Since October, Laura has focused on developing and implementing groups for moms and young children in shelter. This has included sensory groups and a cooking group in partnership with the Food and Nutrition Coordinator at Anselma House.

These groups are intended to help teach and encourage moms to play and engage with their children and also focuses on child development based on age and stage. Laura has also created “Cozy Corners” for each shelter, which are intended to be a space for children when they need time and space for calming and emotional regulation. Having this additional position in the Child and Youth program has shown great benefits for the women and children in shelter.

Expanding Our Reach

In the Outreach program, this year was marked with the beginning of a new partnership opportunity with an existing partner. Commencing in October 2018, Family and Children’s Services (F&CS), an important partner agency to Women’s Crisis Services, has begun to house one of our Outreach Workers at their sites in both Kitchener and Cambridge as part of a one-year pilot.

We have seen incredibly positive results from having F&CS workers in our shelters. It has led to increased trust, better relationships with clients and with staff, and overall better supports in place for the women and children we serve. Similarly, we aim to increase supports to families with F&CS involvement who have experienced domestic violence by having our Outreach worker, Lisa Nice, available to attend home visits with protection workers, act as a domestic violence consultant for F&CS workers, and integrate into the teams at both F&CS locations.

In the first six months of this pilot, we have seen outreach referrals increase by approximately 52%! The opportunity to attend home visits has also allowed us to provide information and resources to men.

Nurse Practitioners at Each Shelter

A new initiative at each of our shelters is the addition of nurse practitioners who serve women and children on site once a week. This provides medical attention for the residents, which is another way to offer supports at a time when women and children are vulnerable. This is in partnership with Lang’s Farm in Cambridge and the Downtown Kitchener Health Centre.

While new initiatives are always exciting, we give credit and appreciation to our direct support staff, along with our managers, who serve our residents and clients day after day, who constantly strive to meet their needs, to serve, challenge and support the women and children who come to us for support with moving beyond violence.

We are so grateful to our amazing community who have continued to provide us with support. We received donations from a variety of people and groups, including individuals, churches, service clubs, schools, businesses, and more. We can’t thank you enough for your generosity!

Corporate Sponsors

Several corporate partners helped make our fundraising events a success by sponsoring “Hats Off to Mom!” and “WAAM-A-PALOOZA Celebrating 40!” Proceeds from these fundraisers went directly to supporting the women and children we serve.

Holiday Donations

During the holidays, many donors gave the gift of hope to the women and children we serve by making monetary donations and by purchasing Holiday Gift Packages. Through the purchase of these packages, donors sponsored music therapy sessions for moms and children, family craft and movie nights at both shelters, and more.

Third Party Events

Many individuals and groups held third party events to raise funds for Women’s Crisis Services. There were lots of fun and creative events including tea parties, brunches, barbecues, and more!

- Alpha Omega Sorority hosted their annual "Breakfast at Tiffany’s" event.
- Wolle Realty organized its second "Wolle Realty on the Rails" fundraiser.
- Lisamaree Cormier put on a high tea party in support of Women’s Crisis Services.
- Shoppers Drug Mart stores throughout the Region raised funds through their “Growing Women’s Health” campaign.
Numbers are objective. As accountants, we rely on them to give us a measure of health of an organization and to help us guide decision making.

If there’s not enough cash on hand to pay for the building, you take out a mortgage. If there aren’t enough resources to safely serve those in need, you close a few beds. If you are concerned about meeting your obligations, you raise funds to fill in the gaps between what you have and what you need.

What numbers don’t tell us is the angst that goes into their interpretation and in taking the sometimes controversial and unpopular decisions they guide us to. They don’t tell us about the sleepless nights spent wondering if a capital project was the right thing to embark on. They don’t tell us about the anxiety associated with slow ticket sales and mounting utility costs.

The numbers also don’t tell us about the satisfaction that comes from watching those fundraising events sell out, the relief of re-opening all available beds and knowing that more women and children in need are able to access more resources than they could before.

And there are no words that clearly express the gratitude that comes with watching a community come together to discharge a mortgage secured by 45 desperately needed shelter beds.

This year over $845,000 was paid towards the building of Haven House, leaving it completely unencumbered by liens and more than half of the funds borrowed from our Partners at the Kitchener Waterloo Community Foundation repaid.

Although the agency receives 77% of its funding from the Ministry of Children, Community and Social Services which funds 58 shelter beds as well as other programming, the generosity of the community has allowed the agency to reopen all 90 beds in both shelters.

The fact that on average the agency has run at full if not close to full capacity throughout the year tells us that those beds are sadly necessary.

All of this to say that as we embark on the 2019/2020 fiscal year, we are well positioned to be able to serve the people who need the agency the most from a sound financial footing.
